Building a Healthy Community, One Person at a Time

CHARLES H. SIMPSON, Ed.D.

Charlie Simpson has seen the world from the air, water and land. Much of his sightseeing lately has been done behind the wheel of McCready's courtesy Care-A-Van, driving patients to healthcare appointments at the Crisfield hospital.

He'll log up to 250 miles a day, fetching folks from across Somerset County -- including Smith Islanders he meets at City

Dock. "You gotta be strong," he says. "Some patients on walkers or with babies in carriers need help boarding."

Charlie insists he's found "places with houses no one knew were there" in his journeys. Distinguishing between Shelltown Road and its cousins, "Old Shelltown Road" and "New Shelltown Road" can be confusing, but he's never been lost.

Assisting McCready patients comes naturally to this retired educator. Even a stint teaching non-English-speaking kids in American Samoa didn't dim his "relish for being able to help, to lead."

Charlie and his wife, Early, love traveling, especially aboard the Molitch (a motor yacht named for their children Molly and Mitch). They also enjoy spending time with their grandkids and tending a garden full of tomatoes, squash, beans and beets. Fish and crabs caught from their boat are "magnificently prepared" by Early to complement the homegrown produce.

Exploring and photographing bay-area scenes are other favorite activities. And he doesn't worry about boat maintenance. "I married my mechanic -- she never lets me near the engine room!"
